Message from the Chief Philanthropy Officer

To our friends and neighbors,

Spring is our favorite season at the EvergreenHealth Foundation because it's when we host the Evergreen Gala, our annual fundraiser to benefit our community-owned hospital. This year's Gala was particularly special. We celebrated the 25th Anniversary of the signature event and broke our fundraising goal, with guests giving $1.65 million to support comprehensive services at EvergreenHealth! Please accept our sincere gratitude for your generous support.

While some details of the event have changed over the past 25 years, the heart of this gathering stays true: Community support that nurtures meaningful growth at EvergreenHealth.

It's a legacy that began in 2002. Longtime EvergreenHealth champion, the late Gloria Leonidas, chaired the inaugural event that gathered about 400 grateful patients, devoted providers and local business leaders. Guests enjoyed an evening of champagne, live music, fine dining and an energetic auction to help establish a Level 3 Neonatal Intensive Care Unit (NICU) at EvergreenHealth, the first NICU east of Lake Washington. We've seen the power of compassionate, patient-centered care as the fragile newborns cared for at the EvergreenHealth NICU grow into children and young adults who bring light to our community.

In many ways, the first Evergreen Gala set a strong precedent for major giving that helps our hospital grow to fulfill community needs. The philosophy of giving for impact is something local philanthropists Chris and Margery Yetman of Woodinville have adopted. With their support, EvergreenHealth was able to purchase two new MRI machines and expand and modernize the intensive care unit during the COVID-19 pandemic—two monumental investments that strengthened patient care at the hospital. Learn more about their philosophy on philanthropy on page 6.

Our goal is always to build bridges between the hospital and community philanthropists to bring meaningful advancements to patient care and community well-being. The stories of EvergreenHealth patients, like Sammamish resident Kirstin Greig, are proof that local giving for local health care works. Turn to page 4 to learn more about how the care she received at the EvergreenHealth Halvorson Cancer Care Center left her stronger than before her diagnosis.

As the rain gives way to late spring sun over EvergreenHealth, I can't help but feel optimistic about the future. Thank you for helping our hospital grow.

With heartfelt gratitude,

2026 Evergreen Gala surpasses fundraising goal at $1.65 million

The Silver Soirée celebrated 25 years of philanthropy and community impact

This year's Evergreen Gala, presented by Bellevue Healthcare, reflected on 25 years of community philanthropy and raised $1.65 million to benefit enhanced technology and comprehensive services at our community-owned hospital, beating our fundraising goal.

The April 24 event kicked off with an elegant reception and silent auction where guests mingled while enjoying high-end appetizers, cocktails and local wines provided by Silver Soirée hosts, The SOMM Hotel and Spa.

EvergreenHealth leaders, including former CEOs Dr. Jeff Tomlin and Bob Malte, took the stage during the live program to reflect on how Gala giving helped build the award-winning hospital we know today. Guests enjoyed a family-style dinner prepared by The SOMM's executive chef Maximillian Petty, perfectly paired wines from Baer Winery and a lively auction led by emcee Michelle Millman and auctioneer Matt Lorch, bidding on exclusive experiences, trips and more throughout the night. The evening ended with music from Rock and Roll Hall of Fame DJ Marco Collins.

We are grateful to our guests, sponsors and partners for making the 25th Anniversary Gala one to remember. Together, we will continue working to meet the health care needs of our growing community and create a brighter future for generations to come.

Join us on October 23 for the Meaningful Medicine Luncheon benefiting EvergreenHealth Hospice Care featuring guest speaker Allison Massari

From patient to partner:

The transformative power of gratitude in cancer care

Throughout her cancer journey, Kirstin's mindset shifted from the passive role of a cancer patient to becoming a partner in her own recovery.

Health and wellness have always been a priority for Sammamish resident Kirstin Greig. So it came as a shock when the yoga instructor, nonsmoker and executive chef-owner of Heirloom Catering was diagnosed with stage IV lung cancer in January 2023.

At one time, Kirstin's specific type of cancer had a sobering prognosis of just 3 to 12 months. But thanks to recent advancements in cancer treatment, her exceptional oncology team and a positive mindset, Kirstin is still thriving three years post-diagnosis.

"EvergreenHealth is a culture of the best and the brightest, and the best and the brightest is going to attract the best and the brightest," Kirstin said. "If I'm going to have cancer, this is where I need to be."

Within days of her diagnosis, Kirstin started a once-daily chemotherapy medication. For 18 months, this regimen slowed her cancer progression. In July 2024 routine imaging revealed the tumor had grown and it was time for radiation. Kirstin was apprehensive, until she met radiation oncologist, Michael Hunter, MD, and learned more about the linear accelerator and all it could do.

"We've become a surgeon with an x-ray beam without cutting a patient," Dr. Hunter said.

The linear accelerator is used to perform a procedure called stereotactic body radiotherapy (SBRT), which can deliver higher doses of radiation and allow higher cure rates in fewer sessions than past forms of radiation. The linear accelerator works by radiating with exceptional precision, destroying the malignant tumor but preserving the skin, tissues and organs that surround it.

In 2022, a group of donors gifted EvergreenHealth with an advanced linear accelerator and updated the existing machine. Today, EvergreenHealth has two linear accelerators with enhanced capabilities, giving radiation oncology patients like Kirstin access to top-of-the-line treatment and technology, close to home.

Bringing quality of life to cancer treatment

Kirstin recalled the first time she saw the linear accelerator—it looked like a "five-headed octopus-monster," she said. Quieter than an MRI, less invasive than surgery and with fewer side effects than traditional radiation, Kirstin's encounters with the linear accelerator were mostly uneventful—but the outcomes were remarkable.

After five sessions, the tumor in Kirstin's left lung that led to her initial diagnosis was obliterated and has not returned. When imaging later revealed the cancer spread to her brain, Kirstin revisited the linear accelerator for another round of radiation. All signs point to success there, too, but her battle against cancer continues.

Demonstrating the strength of the EvergreenHealth and Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center partnership, Kirstin joined a clinical trial for precision therapy that targets the genetic mutation on her specific type of cancer. She is among just 60 people in the world enrolled in the trial.

Throughout her cancer journey, Kirstin's mindset shifted from the passive role of a cancer patient to becoming a partner in her own recovery. She adopted a rigorous daily wellness routine to fortify her mind and body in her battle against cancer, and she's started to share her story.

"I feel like it really gave me my power back," Kirstin said.

Kirstin was featured in our 2026 Gala video. Scan and watch to hear her story.

How philanthropy enhanced cancer care at EvergreenHealth

Over the past 25 years, the generosity of grateful patients has elevated the quality and scope of oncology care at EvergreenHealth. In 2011, the comprehensive EvergreenHealth Halvorson Cancer Care Center was established by a transformative gift from the now-deceased Elling Halvorson and his wife, Barbara. The following year, EvergreenHealth and the renowned Fred Hutchinson Cancer Center in Seattle established a clinical partnership on the Eastside. This partnership gives local patients like Kirstin access to cutting-edge research and specialists like her medical oncologist, Adam Diehl, MD, without having to make the trek to Seattle.

EvergreenHealth donors share their philanthropy philosophy: ‘It’s about caring’

W

Woodinville residents Chris and Margery Yetman have always been compelled to serve their community. Whether through volunteering or philanthropic giving, their purpose has been to do what they can to ease the burden of others.

Roughly thirty years ago, when Chris and Margery were the parents of three young daughters, their giving was modest—$25 here, $50 there—as they worked up to their goal of donating 10% of their annual income to charitable causes.

Over time, the family income grew as Chris’s career advanced, but that 10% target stayed the same. Before long, the family’s philanthropy outpaced their wildest expectations. They began to consider how, if they focused on a few causes, their giving could really move the needle.

The EvergreenHealth difference: Compassionate care, clinical excellence

The family landed in the Seattle area in 2009 after relocating three times for Chris's career as a technology industry executive. For years, they were in and out of hospitals for Margery and their youngest daughter, both of whom had multiple health issues.

In their experience, most hospitals operated like a machine: Patient admitted, treatment dispensed, patient discharged. This is why their early interactions with EvergreenHealth were so profound—you could feel the difference.

“This is why we love EvergreenHealth, because it's about caring,” Chris said.

After moving to the Seattle area, Margery developed chronic spinal problems, which became severe in 2015 and required more care. The first physician she saw wanted to perform an invasive surgery that would have put her in a back brace for a year.

Margery sought a second opinion from EvergreenHealth spine surgeon Mark Freeborn, MD. She knew after her first consultation that she was in the right place.

“I don't know where I'd be now if I hadn't finally been sent to see him,” Margery said.

Since then, Margery has had four surgeries with Dr. Freeborn, who also serves as Chief Medical Officer of EvergreenHealth Medical Group. Chris and Margery developed a deep appreciation for the compassionate care and commitment to clinical excellence at EvergreenHealth.

“You cannot pay people to care,” Chris said. “So, when people do care, it's something you notice.”

How major gifts drive transformative impact

Chris and Margery connected with the EvergreenHealth Foundation in early 2020, while the world was in the throes of the global COVID-19 pandemic and EvergreenHealth was at the center of the first community-based outbreak in the nation. The resilience of the frontline health care workers and the importance of community health care came into sharp focus during the pandemic.

In light of these momentous events, Chris and Margery wanted to give back in a bigger way.

“If you want to make a difference in anything in life, you focus on it. Giving is no different,” Chris said. “You don't build new hospital wings with just $5 gifts.”

The family built philanthropic partnerships with two not-for-profit health care organizations. They chose one with a global focus, St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, and one with a local focus, EvergreenHealth Foundation.

Their pivot to supporting the greatest needs of EvergreenHealth has brought transformative changes to our community-owned hospital.

Their first major gift was in 2020, when Chris and Margery invested in the modernization and expansion of the EvergreenHealth Intensive Care Unit (ICU). It was the first major update to the ICU since it opened in 1979. Their gift facilitated the construction of a new floor with state-of-the-art technology, a more welcoming family room and a dedicated lounge for staff to recharge.

Chris and Margery soon learned community-based philanthropy goes deeper than the visible changes to the hospital. It's a way of uplifting friends, family and neighbors in challenging times. Chris recalls a story from a family friend: While sitting in the ICU family room, waiting for an update on a loved one, she saw Chris and Margery's name on a plaque recognizing them for their philanthropy; it brought her comfort.

“Someone you love is going to receive care from EvergreenHealth,” Chris said, “so why wouldn’t you like to invest in a piece of that?”

In 2024, Chris and Margery gave seed funding that helped with the purchase of two new MRI machines for EvergreenHealth. A new 1.5T MRI was installed in late 2025. A 3T MRI, which produces higher resolution imaging, is projected to be ready for patient imaging in early 2027.

“A 3T MRI will elevate our capabilities across the health system, opening the doors for more sophisticated imaging and treatment options at EvergreenHealth,” said Dr. Freeborn. “It is transformative for our patients.”

Philanthropy that builds a legacy

Chris and Margery have also expanded their involvement with their philanthropic partners, with Chris serving on the Professional Advisory Board for St. Jude’s and Margery serving on the EvergreenHealth Foundation Board of Trustees. At the end of their lives, they plan to donate a portion of their estate to St. Jude’s and EvergreenHealth Foundation.

When asked about the core principles that define their approach to philanthropy, they both agree. “Our ancestors planted trees that we’re now enjoying,” Chris said. “There comes a time when it’s your turn to plant some trees.”

EvergreenHealth Foundation Board of Trustees spotlight

The EvergreenHealth Foundation Board of Trustees is comprised of more than 20 community volunteers that offer strategic insight and oversight for the EvergreenHealth Foundation. The Foundation benefits from their collective experience as professionals, community members and hospital leaders.

MEET EVERGREENHEALTH FINANCE CHAIR JASON HOLLAWAY

The Board is divided into various committees, one of the most significant being the Finance Committee chaired by Jason Hollaway, Senior Vice President of Commercial Banking at Heritage Bank Northwest in Bellevue, where he works to help Eastside businesses thrive.

Jason was drawn to EvergreenHealth's local focus and community stewardship and joined the Board of Trustees in 2022. Two years later, he joined the Finance Committee where he serves as chair and treasurer today.

"The finance committee is responsible for managing donor dollars and making sure they are being put to good use," Jason said. The committee reviews investment strategies for endowments, always balancing the need to yield the best possible return on the investment while still protecting the principle.

When the hospital goes to make a purchase or invest in a new initiative, the committee ensures those funds are ready to go, and helps with annual audits, taxes and other money management tasks.

"This community has been so generous to the EvergreenHealth Foundation, and we want to make sure those funds are being put to work in the most meaningful way possible," he said.

A lifelong Eastside resident, Jason and his wife, Kenzie Hollaway, recently welcomed a daughter, Georgia, in August 2024 at EvergreenHealth Hospital in Kirkland.

REINTRODUCING OUR NEWEST TRUSTEE, TIM MCLAUGHLIN

In February, the Board of Trustees confirmed the appointment of longtime EvergreenHealth supporter and retired finance professional Tim McLaughlin. If that name looks familiar to you, that's because it is.

Tim was an ex officio, or nonvoting, member of the EvergreenHealth Board of Trustees from 2017-23, where he also served on the Finance Committee. He served on the Board of Trustees as a representative of the Board of Commissioners for the Public Hospital District that governs EvergreenHealth Hospital in Kirkland.

Tim, who has lived in Redmond for more than 20 years, was appointed and later elected to the Board of Commissioners to represent Sammamish and Redmond residents from 2016-24. Tim chaired the board for three years starting in January 2020, through the peak of the COVID-19 pandemic. Before joining the Board of Commissioners, Tim served for nine years on the EvergreenHealth Community Advisory Council, a group that works closely with the commissioners.

He opted not to seek reelection in 2024 and spent two years traveling the world with his wife, Priscilla, before joining the Board of Trustees in early 2026—this time as a volunteer through the community.

We know that Tim's institutional knowledge of EvergreenHealth and commitment to the success of our community-owned hospital will benefit our board.

Looking back on 25 years of impact at the Evergreen Gala

Touching the tiniest hearts

The first Evergreen Gala was chaired by EvergreenHealth champion and visionary philanthropist, the late Gloria Leonidas.

Hosted at the Bellevue Doubletree in February 2002, the first Gala raised more than $150,000 to help establish a Level 3 Intensive Care Nursery at EvergreenHealth, the first neonatal critical care unit east of Lake Washington.

The 400-person guest list featured much of the leadership of EvergreenHealth today, including neurologist David Likosky, MD; radiation oncologists Michael Hunter, MD, and Eric Taylor, MD; and Shelly Henderson, director of internal marketing.

By supporting the greatest needs of EvergreenHealth, our first Evergreen Gala planted countless seeds that flourish today. Philanthropy drives impact and has contributed to EvergreenHealth's status as a top 50 hospital nationwide.

Swing into Spring

Our inaugural Spirit of Giving Award was granted to the DeYoung Family for their service to EvergreenHealth, kicking off a tradition of recognizing leaders in our community. Guests of the 2006 Gala raised more than $560,000 to establish the EvergreenHealth Neurosciences Institute, a comprehensive care center that includes the lauded Booth Gardner Parkinson's Care Center and an award-winning stroke care program, beginning a legacy of excellence in neurology that continues 20 years on.

Imagine the possibilities...

The 2008 Gala raised $1 million to expand cancer care at EvergreenHealth, including the purchase of a mobile mammography unit. The comprehensive cancer care center would later be named in honor of this year's Spirit of Giving recipients, Elling and Barbara Halvorson, becoming the Halvorson Cancer Care Center as we know it today.

For a quarter-century, EvergreenHealth Foundation has gathered hospital leaders, philanthropic partners and other changemakers in our community for an evening to remember at the Evergreen Gala—the Foundation’s signature event. We reflect on 25 years of moments, milestones and impact.

Under the Big Top

More than 650 guests gathered under the big white tent at Marymoor Park in Redmond, reveling in circus acrobatics and bidding to benefit EvergreenHealth’s Acute Rehabilitation Unit, the Eastside’s 14-bed inpatient rehabilitation unit. The event surpassed its goal, raising $1.25 million to develop a specialized “home transition room” to help patients recovering from a serious illness, injury or hospitalization by simulating a home environment.

2016

Evening on the Savannah

Matt Lorch has supported the Evergreen Gala as both an emcee and auctioneer since 2016.

2018

Run for the Roses

The community donned their Kentucky Derby hats and raised $1.4 million to purchase the stroke biplane, an advanced imaging technology for neurosurgery. The biplane has been transformative for stroke care at EvergreenHealth, enabling neurosurgeons to remove or dissolve blood clots, treat aneurysms and more. The biplane helps EvergreenHealth neurosurgeons to practice their most exceptional medicine, helping reverse the effects of stroke and preventing death or disability for countless patients.

“I woke up as a fully recovered miracle,” said Woodinville resident Tom Chirichigno, whose stroke was treated using the biplane at EvergreenHealth.

In 2019, Evergreen Gala guests raised an additional $1 million to outfit neurosurgical operating rooms with state-of-the-art technology. In 2022, EvergreenHealth was certified as a comprehensive stroke center, the highest national standard for stroke care.

The biplane purchased by 2018 Gala donors transformed stroke care at EvergreenHealth.

A Grand Reunion

After two years of virtual fundraisers due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the community gathered to celebrate and support radiation oncology at the EvergreenHealth Halvorson Cancer Care Center. Guests raised $1.3 million to upgrade the hospital’s existing linear accelerator and purchase a second linear accelerator to enhance this treatment option for radiation oncology patients. Turn to page 4 to learn how access to this precision technology improved outcomes for EvergreenHealth cancer patients like Kirstin Greig.

2025

Spring Soirée

Guests of the 2025 Gala will be remembered for raising a record-setting $2.2 million for EvergreenHealth’s community programs, specifically the forensic nursing program, behavioral health and hospice care. Barb Jensen, RN, was honored with the Spirit of Giving Award for her lifetime of service, including stewarding the hospital through the COVID-19 pandemic.
